8. Report of FDP on "Qualitative Research Methods and Machine Learning" organized from 9th -14th July 2018

The term 'big data' always refer to quantitative data which can be easily expressed as numbers or categories. Statistical and machine learning techniques "love" numbers. On the other hand Qualitative researchers believe that numbers won't always work to draw inferences. They believe that by interviewing people and asking them to answer open-ended questions one can learn more than by simply looking at hard data. Moreover, data mining is the process of extracting hidden patterns from data. Data mining uses machine learning algorithms, to classify, predict, group, recommend, etc. So, the knowledge of qualitative research methods, case study and machine learning software operation would enhance the user skill which in turn can be used in class room teaching and academic research supervision, writing Ph.D and M.Phil dissertations. Keeping this in view, our institute organize a Faculty Development Program on "Qualitative Research Methods and Machine Learning" from 9th - 14th July, 2018.

The aim of one week FDP is to understand right approach towards research design, methods and understanding of research epistemologies driving qualitative research methods. It will also equip participants with skills and essential knowledge for application of machine learning techniques in various domains, along with hands-on-training on machine learning using KNIME. In depth knowledge of case study methods for effective teaching will also be the part of the FDP. Key highlights of FDP were:

- Approaches in Data Analysis, Content Analysis, Thematic Analysis Content Analysis, Narrative and Sentiment Analysis using NVIVO

- Overview of Qualitative Research Paradigms and Epistemology Applications of Machine Learning in various industry segments

- Classification, Regression, Clustering Association Analysis Text Mining and Social Sentiment Analysis

Venue: Auditorium, MERI College
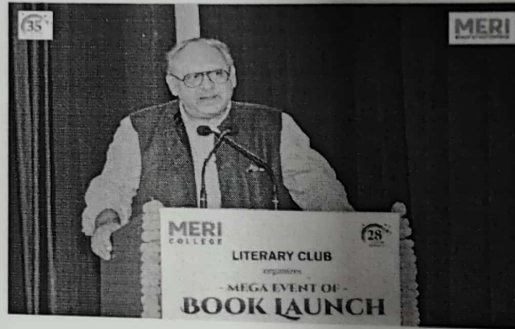

A Mega Event of Book Launch was organized by the Literary Club of MERI College. The Book titled "Mentor Morphosis", authored by Dr.Akash

Khurana,who is a mentor, actor, filmmaker, screenwriter and an author too.This book is a fascinating account of Dr. Akash Khurana's journey that emphasises the transformation that mentorship can bring about in a person's life. Morphosis refers to a change in the appearance of someone or something. Dr. Akash Khurana thinks that cultivating a passion for creativity releases the leader in you and is a preeminent ladder to excellence based on his personal experiences in management, academia, journalism, and the performing arts. The book details the various mentorships we receive and how they affect us on different levels. The transformational journey of a student's life is accurately depicted in the book, as is the crucial function it plays in connecting them with the most suitable mentors who can lead us as Lord Krishna instructed Arjuna. It makes the reader aware that it is their job to become the mentors that the world needs only after they develop into great leaders after receiving mentoring.The book is an absolute delight for a person who is an admirer of Art and Literature. It has references from various books, mythology, art, and music. It is a book that bends our minds and that pushes us to think deeper. This book can be a mentor for mentors.For someone who enjoys art and literature, the book is an incredible treat. There are allusions to different novels, myths, works of art, and musical works. It is a book that challenges us to think creatively and critically. A mentor for mentors can be found in this book.

The Book Launch event kicked off with a welcoming address by Mrs. Swati Chawla, Assistant Professor at MERI. The event further proceeded with Lamp Lightning ceremony which was performed by all dignitaries present there. National Anthem was played as a sign of respect to the nation. Saraswati Vandana was performed by students as a tribute to Maa Saraswati, the goddess of knowledge. The students performed a play depicting few life experiences of Dr. Akash Khurana which are mentioned in his newly launched book. The event proceeded with the unveiling of the book "Mentor Morphosis" by Dr. Akash Khurana, Dr. Sudeep Das, Prof. Lalit Aggarwal – VP at MERI Group of Instituions, Prof. (Dr.) Deepshikha Kalra – Dean at MERI.

The event continued with a chat show and rapid fire. Mrs. Deepti Kapoor, an assistant professor at MERI, hosted the chat programme and asked some interesting questions, to which Dr. Akash responded with engaging and seasoned response, which was very engrossing to watch for the audiences. Later on the stage was opened for the students and faculty members for interaction with Dr. Akash. The event concluded with a Vote of thanks delivered by Prof. Lalit Aggarwal. He also provided the author with a prospect for future mentorship methods that educational institutions must implement. Finally, the stage was cleared to allow for book signings and autographs.

Report on Special Lecture on Increasing the Efficiency of Public Policies through Behavioral Interventions

It's frequently essential to alter behavior to address societal issues. We must consider how we can encourage individuals to save more and spend less if we want them to become indebted less frequently. Make sure individuals exercise more and eat less sugar and fat if we want them to be healthier. Finding strategies to encourage students to visit school is necessary if we want to lower student absenteeism. Hence, Behavioral-based intervention in designing public policies has become an important field of study in recent years with empirical studies devoted to analyzing how to design better policies from the fields of behavioral economics, social psychology, sociology, anthropology, economy, political science, design (human-centered design and design thinking), or effective state and non-state bureaucracies throughout the world. Therefore, Management Education and Research Institute and Guru Gobind Indraprastha University, New Delhi organized a "Special Lecture on Increasing the Efficiency of Public Policies through Behavioral Interventions" jointly on 23rd November 2022 to apprise students about the practical and theoretical implications of behavioral-based intervention in designing public policies.

Behavioral interventions can be powerful, low-cost tools to help governments across the world improve their public policies by taking into account how people make choices.
